A1

- Jakob Braun *Nov.19,1834 - +Feb.27,1903 Osterwick,Manitoba.

He arrived with his family in Manitoba on July 15,1875.

He fell from the hayloft unto a parked wagon below and broke his collar bone. This caused his death. As he was banned by the church (for moving out of the village and living on a farm separately) he was not buried in the cemetery, but in his garden. (Note: Four years later his coffin was dug up and taken to his eldest daughters farm - Peter Hoeppners.

∞ 1854

- Maria Fast * 1834, = 1854, + 1914.

At the age of 67 years she milked her 6 cows, churned the cream and kneaded the butter.

The Isaac Fehrs of Saskatchewan decided to join the exodus to Mexico. Naturally Mrs. Fehr would want to see her two sisters, Anna and Katharina. All three met at the Gerhard Brauns in Burwalde. When mealtime came, Mother Braun faced a difficult situation. She and her family could sit down at table with both Mrs. Goertzen and Mrs. Fehr. But Mrs. Fehr would run smack against church edicts if she sat down at table with a banned church member. Hence the hostess set two tables. One for the Goertzens and the Brauns and a smaller one for the Fehrs. Three sisters after many years of separation could not sit down around a common fellowship table.

The unhappy lot of the Jacob Braun grandparents was equally painful. While the Mennonite homesteaders all filed for their own individual farms, the village fathers organized all the landowners into a pool and then re-assigned the cultivated acreage in 20-acre strips to the village farmer. This, of course, did have a few advantages. It made it very convenient to utilize the poorest village land for the village pasture. The system should also have given each farmer tillable fields of about the same quality. Living in village had its own advantages. It did afford protection and it simplified school and church attendance.

Grandfather Braun presently tired of following inefficient tillers and took his farm out of the village land pool. Since this threatened the village system of organized farming, Jacob Braun was banned from the church. This probably did not disturb him unduly. He had already moved his farmyard out of the village unto his homestead.
