Remarks: The above data regarding the Peter Dyck (1796-1872) are taken from a family chronicle now in possession of his grandson Mr. Nickolai Dyck of Clearbrook, B.C. The questions regarding Peter Dyck's forefathers were solved in accordance with the lists of emigrants from Prussia to Russia as published in Prof. B.H. Unruh's book. The grandfather was Peter Dyck(Senior) born about 1749, in 1788 emigrated from Prussia to Chortitza in S.Russia, deceased Apr. 6,1808 at the same Place. He was married twice:
1) Widow Boschmann nee Justina Giesbrecht, deceased in Prussia;
2) To Miss Maria * 1760. The father, likewise a Peter Dyck (junior) born in 1779 - according to other sources 1768 - of the 1st marriage, came from the village Goldberg, of the Elbing District, West Prussia, and settled in 1789 at Neuendorf, Chortitza Colony, S. Russia. There is no doubt that these two prussian Peter Dycks (senior & junior) were descendants of a persecuted anabaptists, which emigrated from the Netherlands (Holland) to West Prussia, at that time under Polish sovereignty. This happened during the Reformation in the 16th century.

Came to Canada 1876.

Isaak F. Dyck had always (or for some time) lived in the so-called "Judenplan" settlement in the Province of Cherson, South-Russia; founded in 1847. He came to Canada, with his parents and the rest of the family, in 1876, from January 1883 to October 1886 they resided at Rosenthal, Man., from then on until Aprl 1891 at Burwalde, Man. then until July 1891 at Gleichen, Alberta, and in August 1891 Isaac and his brother Franz settled in Rosthern, Sask. On 24-26 of August 1961 the Town of Rosthern and district celebrated its 70th anniversary, honoring about 100 pioneers and their forefathers; among the first ten families settling 1891 in this area were mentioned Isaak F. Dyck and his brother Franz Dyck. Pioneer life in those days was filled with adversities as well as happiness. Severe snowstorms in winter, drought, insects and prairie fires in summer, were met with determination by these settlers, whose first dwellings were mud huts or hastily constructed shacks.

As a young man Nickolai Dyck (usually called Klaas Dyck) moved to the village of Schoenwiese near the city Alexandrowsk (Zaporoschje) where he married Maria Falk, here Dyck owned a blacksmith shop. Between the years 1880 and 1882 this family moved to Neu-Chortitza/Baratow Colony). At this time the blacksmith shop was sold to Heinrich Toews. The land of the Baratow settlement was purchased by the Chortitza (mother) Colony in 1871. Klaas Dyck owned a farm of 50 desjatin (135 acres). His neighbours were Johann deVeer and Johann Sawatzky. Klaas Dyck was not of high stature, enjoyed a good health, had a good set of teeth right up to his end. He reached the age of 80 and, it is said, he never needed any medical help. His knowledge of the blacksmith trade and also his liking of hunting seems to be transmitted to his sons and grandsons. After his death, the farm was run by the youngest son Nickolai.

Abraham Dyck was employed as foreman of the forge division at the factory of "Lepp and Wallmann" in Schoenwiese. Among his fellow workers he was well liked and respected. During the 1917 Revolution, when the factory was nationalized and run by a Workers Council, many keymen were dismissed, but Abraham Dyck remained on his job. A.D. was a great hunter, his pure-bred hunting dog "Hektor" always was a steady companion on their hunting trips.
